

The Former Director of Hausa Service of Radio Iran Mallam Ibrahim Akil described Iranian Media as the best in terms objectivity and fairness in reporting.

The speaker expressed this to journalists of the Islamic Movement who attended a conference on Journalism organized by Almizan newspaper at Fudiyyah Islamic Center, Zaria.

Narrating his 12 yr experience in Journalism in Iran Radio, he explained that Journalism is a medium to get to people and educating them on various things that affect their lives. Perhaps, that is why Radio is tagged in Iran as Hadi (guide)- a guide in shaping people thinking , giving them knowledge and better understanding of things thereby raising their status, he explained. He added that the mission of Iran media is to educate people in health, religion, politics etc based on scale of justice, fairness and humanity without bias. These qualities, he said differentiate Iranian Media from the Western Media.

Bias in reporting characterized western media, he said, citing the example of happenings in Bahrain as nothing in going on while concentrating on Syria because of their selfish interest. The way report is carried out by Western Media always contain a hidden motive to blackmail Islam, citing example of a Tribe in Yemen which mainly Shias and felt maginalised and seek independent from the Government of Yemen. The Speaker explained Western media reported the incidence as shia-sunni fight, which is wrong.
